A Memento from the Past

This bronze memorial plaque was one of about six such plaques that were attached to trees planted in the Tremont City Park about 100 years ago. The plaques were placed on the trees by the Women's Improvement Association in memory of area soldiers who died in World War I.

Each memorial tree was planted in the area of the old band stand. When the first park shelter was built, the bandstand was torn down, and some of the trees may have been removed at that time.

About 40 years ago, a Morton woman using a metal detector discovered the plaque at the base of a tree and donated it to the village of Tremont. It is on display in the Tremont Museum.

High School Boys Basketball 2019

After going to the 2019 sectional finals and losing a heartbreaking loss in the championship, the Tremont Boys Basketball team is looking forward to competing at the same level this season.

Every year, the basketball season draws in a crowd at home games, raising money for the school. That is mostly due to how entertaining it is to watch them play and the overwhelming support of the community.

One reason games are not boring is because Head Coach Troy Schmidt wants his teams to play fast. Schmidt coaches a fast-paced game where Tremont attempts to speed the other team up. This can result in the opposing team eventually making mistakes. The entertainment keeps the game from being too mellow.

The Tremont fans are the best thing about home games to the players. "We got the crowd on our side. That's the best part," Isaac Lennington, a senior basketball player said.

The next home game is on Tuesday, December 10. Come and support your Turks.
